Huntington University OTD Switches to CORE ELMS

The Huntington University OTD Program switched to the CORE ELMS application to manage their fieldwork education component.

“Prior to using CORE, we tried many other programs. The CORE ELMS application keeps us one step ahead.”

“Without CORE, our work would be dramatically harder because our students wouldn’t be getting materials to us on time, faculty would be searching for information, and administrative and office staff would be spending unnecessary time on program tasks. We switched to CORE because we saw the value behind their client support and most importantly, it’s convenient for our students to use. Our program has improved since using the CORE application because it keeps us one step ahead of other programs and allows us to use our time and resources very effectively.”

“One of the most challenging things about running an experiential learning component is engaging with students and ensuring consistency. We truly found that CORE was able to streamline communication, allow easier access to information, and really assisted with our accreditation process. CORE is flexible, convenient, and moldable to meet your specific program needs. The greatest perk of using CORE is that you have a phenomenal ability to access a live team of people and technical support at your convenience. I would highly recommend CORE Higher Education for any program at any institution.”
